

COMMUNITY HEALTH SYSTEMS CATALOG

2017 UPDATES

APC's Community Health Systems Catalog documents policy guidance across 25 countries in detailed profiles and data sets. The catalog was first developed in 2014 to fill a knowledge gap on existing policy guidance for community health programs and to consolidate country-specific policy information into a database for easy access and use among policymakers, researchers, donors, and program implementers. Since the catalog's launch, new momentum to harmonize and scale up community health programs has surfaced, and countries are creating and redesigning their policies accordingly. APC is currently updating the catalog to capture new and revised policies as they develop, and is expanding the content to include other health areas (nutrition; water, sanitation and hygiene [WASH]; maternal, newborn, and child health [MNCH]) in addition to the family planning and reproductive health services that it originally featured. This update comes at a time when countries are committing to the Sustainable Development Goals, and recognize that integration and scale-up of community health programs are paramount to making progress toward these goals. New data on 12 countries is available on the catalog webpage, and additional updates are expected soon.
